— From a religious perspective, yes. I think practicing homosexuality is contrary to God's plan, and that those doing so are putting their souls at risk. That doesn't mean I hate them, as many would claim.

— Liberals do exactly what they accuse conservatives of doing, discriminate against those they disagree with. Case in point, affirmative action, which instead of setting an even playing field, discriminates against non-minorities. Gays could have pushed for civil union licenses and made up their own name for their ceremonies, but that wouldn't have been good enough. They had to punish religious...

Family biking 300 miles for WCU Bike for Food

3 years ago Paige Traeder, WTAD

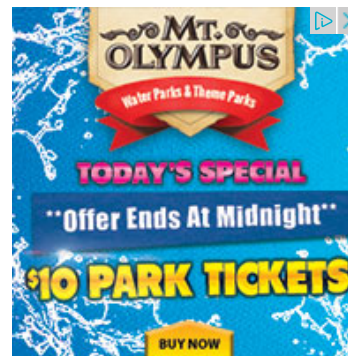

The 7th Annual WCU Bike for Food is now underway and Mark Wiewel and his 2 sons are riding their bicycles to raise $20,000 for area food pantries

This year Mark Wiewel and his 2 sons are riding approximately 300 miles on their bicycles in an attempt to raise money for area food pantries. Since 2006 the WCU Bike for Food has raised 69 thousand dollars for food pantries in Quincy, Hannibal, Palmyra and Canton.

This year, their goal is $20,000 and they need your help. Mark explains how great the need is at the area food pantries.

"Eleven months into their year they've already served 16,000 people and they're estimated to serve 17,000 by the end of this month when their fiscal year ends. And that's just one food pantry out of 10 that basically we are raising money for."

To make a donation send it directly to one or more of 10 area food pantries and most importantly, write the word "BIKE" on your check. If you are paying in cash include a note and mail it directly to the food pantries. If you are donating can goods ask them to
